08. Natural Phenomena – Includes occurrences in nature, such as storms, floods, forest fires, aurora, etc.
09. Altered/Composite – Are manipulated by adding or deleting components; combining images or other manipulations not considered part of normal dark room processing. A stitched panorama or an HDR processed image is not considered manipulated.
10. Black and white images - Only outdoor subjects in Categories 1 - 8 are eligible. A quality B&W image requires more skill and processing than simply changing a color file to gray scale. Submit a digital file of the B&W image.
11. Novice images - Open to members who have not won a first place in any RMOWP photo category, other than Novice, and consider themselves to be novice-level photographers. Enter only outdoor subjects included in Categories 1 through 8. A novice can also enter any of the other categories. Getting a first place award in the novice category does not disqualify you from continuing to enter images in the novice category. We would like to see novice photographers continue to enter this category until they are competitive in the other categories.
12. Published Images - Submit a digital file of your image. Subjects may include anything qualifying for categories 01 through 10. Images must have been published since January 1, 2016. Photographs may be entered that were published in newspapers, books, magazines, calendars, postcards, posters, newsletters, eBooks, eMagazines, etc. If several photographs are published in a publication, only one photograph from the publication is to be submitted for competition. The publication or a PDF of the publication should be submitted with the entry in this category. If a PDF or printout of an eBook or eMagazine is not available, include the internet location that the ePublication can be found. You do not have to submit two copies of a book, magazine or paper if you enter both a photograph and a written work from the same publication.

Entries will include outdoor topics such as scenic areas, travel, history, wildlife, natural resource management, regulations, legislation or environmental issues. There is no time limit for the publication date; however, a written work may not have been entered in a previous RMOWP contest. If an individual has more than one written work in a publication, individual articles from that publication can each be submitted for competition. Record the title, publication and publication date on the entry form. Submit the publication, a copy or a printout of the article. VIDEO AND BOOKS

30. Full Length Video: A video should tell a story through the process of editing. Entries will include outdoor topics. Documentaries accomplish this with interviews, narration, images and with video of pertinent material to the story line. In this way, the viewer will hear the story and see the corresponding video. Another way to do this is with text on screen. The text tells the story along with images and video clips. Please provide a trailer of less than 60 seconds that can be used to illustrate the video.
31. Video Clips: Video clips are nominally 10 to 30 seconds long with a few seconds of lead-in and lead-out before the subject comes into frame. They are the building blocks of full length videos. Judging criteria include proper exposure, good composition, focus, proper white balance, steady camera work, and degree of technical difficulty. It is critical to pan, tilt, or zoom smoothly so as not to introduce a jarring motion. Enter only outdoor subjects included in Categories 1 through 8. Do not include sound or titles. Submit your video clips in the .mov or .mp4 format at the highest resolution that your camera produces (but not 4K). Use of the digital darkroom is encouraged for preparation of your video clip. Lightroom 4 and later supports editing video. Examples of other video editing software are iMovie, Final Cut Pro, Adobe Premier, Adobe Premier Elements, Adobe After Effects, etc
35. Books: Entries will include outdoor topics and may be portions of the book when more than one author contributed. A stand-alone chapter in a book should be entered in Category 24.
